EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Berlin has denied that any German naval expedition has been sent to American waters.

The law governing military registration will be found in today's Kentuckian and should be closely studied.

Prosecution will follow any effort or propaganda to hinder registration, was the warning issued by the Government last night.

Of 76 persons killed by the German air raid on Dover, 70 were women and children attending a potato sale in a crowded street.

A Des Moines judge has decided that Jews who observe Saturday as their Sabbath, need not close their places of business on Sunday.

Army and navy officers are demanding that German spies be executed when caught, as thousands of lives are endangered by their operations.

The Westminster Gazette publishes a message from a correspondent, who says the submarine menace is being mastered by a simple method which, the correspondent indicates, is the invention of an American.

Congress has created the Mt. McKinley National Park in Alaska and no "Keep Off the Grass" signs will be needed, as most of the park, which is nearly four miles high, is covered with perpetual snow.

Gov. McCall, of Massachusetts, has been given authority by his State legislature to legalize the working of crops and gardens on Sunday and to fix the price of foodstuffs and regulate distribution.

Louisville will entertain the Press for the first time in seventeen years, at a summer meeting next month. A big time is promised all who attend. The editor of the Kentuckian regrets very much that he cannot be on hand.

The Louisville Tobacco Warehouse Company sustained a $50,000 fire loss, and various local and foreign tobacco brokers lost well over $100,000 worth of stored tobacco, in a Main street blaze early Sunday morning.

Without exception, politicians will be taken out of other offices to administer the new tax law. All three of the commissioners will resign other offices, both of the Democrats giving up places to which they were elected in 1915.

Harry Giovannelli, the brilliant editor of the Lexington Leader, was married Thursday to Miss Florence Rogers, a talented Lexington belle. The bride is no doubt finding it harder to spell, Giovannelli than her old name. All the same, she has a husband she can be justly proud of.

Regulations for the guidance of the press in carrying out the voluntary censorship which has been inaugurated have been issued by the Committee on Public Information. Most of the matter specified as dangerous and liable to be of value to the enemy already has been eliminated from the news columns.

Sunday at about 11 o'clock the horse belonging to Clifton Howard was killed by lighting at the Little River church about seven miles from town. The animal had been unhitched and tied to the fence. The lightning struck the fence near the horse's head and it was killed. The buggy was also damaged.

Printer Wanted!

The Kentuckian has an opening for a round printer familiar with business country office, including the make-up and a knowledge of

ITALIANS SCORE NEW VICTORIES

Smash Through Austrian Lines Along Their Entire Front Facing Triest.

1,200 PRISONERS, 11 GUNS

On France-Belgian Front Reports Speak Only of Local Infantry Battles.

Smashing the Austrian lines on the Carso plateau and in the mountainous country north of Gorizia the Italians have made additional and important gains. General Cadorna's troops also captured more than 1,200 prisoners and eleven guns.

BATTLES ON BRITISH FRONT

On the front in France there has been recrudescence of infantry activity but not on a large scale. The British made gains in local attacks northwest of St. Quentin.

On the Aisne and the Champagne fronts both the Germans and French have been active. Around Teton, in Champagne, the German crown prince made three attacks and succeeded in penetrating the French line. A counter-attack by General Petain's troops, however, forced the Germans to retire again to their own lines.

North of the Aisne the Germans were repulsed in an attack against the Laifaux mill, an important point, South of Pargny, on the Ailette, north of Braye-en-Laonnois. Berlin reports five French attacks were made in vain as was an attack near Vauxaillon, north of Laifaux Mill.

SPANISH STEAMERS LOST.

Two more Spanish steamers have been sunk with the loss of probably 100 lives. The largest vessel was the mail steamer C. DeEizaguirre of 4,300 tons and an official statement reports only 22 of her 40 passengers and crew of 60 landed.

The other steamer lost was the Begona, of 2,800 tons. The manner in which the steamers were sunk has not been made public.

CAPT. NELSON HAS RESIGNED

Will Return From Headquarters to Resume His Farm Club Work.

Twenty-five years of continuous service in the Kentucky National Guard has been brought to an end with the resignation of Capt. Bolling G. Nelson, Quartermaster of the Third Regiment, says the Courier-Journal. Capt. Nelson, whose home is at Hopkinsville, will return to that city to resume his work with the Boys' Corn and Pig clubs. Leave of absence from the farm extension work was granted him last summer when the troops went to the border. The extension department of the Department of Agriculture now thinks his services of more value along agricultural lines, and at its behest Capt. Nelson resigned his commission. He will be succeeded by Capt. William S. Evans, of Russellville, formerly Second Lieutenant and his assistant. Capt. Evans' place will be taken by Benjamin L. Nisbet, of Madisonville, former Supply Sergeant. Nisbet, a former student of the University of Kentucky, was recommended recently for the Reserve Officers' training camp, but will not attend because of the promotion.

KENTUCKY AND SOUTHWEST HIT SUNDAY BY TORNADOES

THE "BONE DRY" STATES

Mail Containing Liquor Ads Barred From Half of The Country.

Washington, May 29.—Postmaster General Burleson has announced that the territory to which it will be unlawful to mail letters, postal cards or publications containing liquor advertisements under the Reed amendment embraces at least 24 States in their entirety and portions of two others, with uncertain data as four more. The statute is effective July 1st, except where otherwise stated.

The absolutely "bone dry" States are Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, Colorado, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Iowa, Maine, Michigan, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, South Carolina, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and West Virginia.

The area also includes West county, Delaware, and 91 towns in Connecticut.

The law is effective in Utah August 1 next; Indiana, April 3, 1918; Michigan, April 30, 1918; New Hampshire, May 1, 1918, and Montana, December 31, 1918.

The existence of many local laws in Maryland prevent the compilation of complete data.

In Ohio the law applies in counties or territories where the sale of liquor as a beverage is prohibited.

Rhode Island cities and towns which have voted "dry" come under the statute, as did all political subdivisions in Texas which favor prohibition.

BELOVED LADY PASSES AWAY

Wife of Judge Polk Cansler Dies Rather Unexpectedly at Hospital.

Mrs. Elvira A. Cansler, wife of Judge Polk Cansler, died rather unexpectedly at the Jennie Stuart Hospital yesterday morning about four o'clock. She had been in bad health for some time, suffering from a complication of diseases, and had been at the hospital for several days. Mrs. Cansler was 70 years old and was a daughter of the late A. D. Boales. She was married to Judge Cansler in 1876. Besides her husband, two children, Mrs. Maud Koenig, of Chicago, and Charles Cansler, of Enid, Oklahoma, survive. Mrs. Cansler had been a member of the Methodist church for thirty years and was a faithful and devoted member and a lovely christian lady. She has hosts of friends in this city who loved her for her noble christian character and her innate desire to lend a helping hand wherever and whenever she could.

Funeral arrangements had not been completed at press hour, but it will be held some time tomorrow (Wednesday) and the interment will be at Riverside Cemetery.

Trying For Triest.

Each day finds the Italians closer to Triest. The right flank, resting on the ocean, now has passed the mouth of the Timave river. The center has pushed beyond Jamiano, and the left wing has taken additional trenches around Castagnavizza. The Italians have taken 22,419 prisoners since May 14.

Property damage, $5,000,600

Chicago, Ill., May 28.—More than 150 persons were killed, a thousand or more injured and millions of dollars worth of property destroyed by tornadoes which swept through Kansas on Friday, Illinois and Indiana on Saturday and parts of Tennessee, Arkansas, Kentucky and Southern Illinois Sunday.

Reports indicate that a large amount of farm implements needed to produce the bumper crops desired this year were ruined, although the episodic windstorm struck only here and there in its frightful play through the regions. Crop damage is said to be not heavy in grain.

The death list in Indiana may reach 20. More than 200 were injured in the Indiana territory swept by the storm. The property loss in Indiana is more than $2,500,000.

LOSSES IN ILLINOIS.

The heaviest toll of life was taken at Mattoon, Ill., a city of 13,000 population in the broom corn country of central Illinois, where 54 are known to be dead and 500 are injured with a property loss of $2,000,000.

Charleston, Ill., ten miles east of Mattoon was also partly wrecked Saturday evening with a loss of 38 lives and 150 injured.

The property loss there is a million dollars.

The next most serious loss was at Andale, Kansas, where 26 were killed and a score injured on Friday.

Dublin, Graves county, Kentucky, suffered three dead and seventeen injured. It is reported that 20 or more were killed at Hickman.

IN TENNESSEE AND SOUTHERN ILLINOIS.

South Dyersburg, Tenn., was reported to have lost six killed and fifteen injured in a tornado that swept Dyer county. Near Blytheville, Ark., nine persons were reported killed and a dozen hurt.

Smaller towns in Illinois lost a dozen dead on Saturday, with two scores injured, while in the southern part of Illinois windstorms killed a half dozen and injured a score.

LOCAL CLOUDBURST.

The storm which swept the country did not fail to hit Hopkinsville. Sunday evening between six and seven o'clock one of the hardest rainstorms ever witnessed in this section struck the city. The rain fell so hard and the wind blew so violently that umbrellas were useless. In a few moments the streets were flooded and the pavements were under water.

Thunder and lightning added to the fierce rain presented a very awe inspiring spectacle, but so far as has been reported no material damage was done in this section. The farmers of Christian county have been getting ready for tobacco planting for several days and the rain has furnished an ideal season for setting out the plants, as plants are now well grown but none too plentiful.

For Polishing Furniture.

The polish generally used on mission furniture is the dull wax finish. If, instead of applying only wax, alternate coats of boiled linseed oil and wax are used, a polish will be obtained which is brighter and more durable than the ordinary finish.

Use of Glycerin.

For bad bruises—mix five spoonfuls of glycerin and one spoonful of sub-acetate of lead. Shake up in a bottle and keep corked. Apply some on a piece of lint and cover with a handage. For coughs—A small teaspoonful of glycerin should be swallowed slowly. Those who dislike the sweetness of glycerin may mix it with a little lemon or orange juice, or even vinegar.

Apple Purely Gift of Nature.

From the days of Adam and Eve man has always hankered for apples and much of his time has been spent in the culture of this king of fruits. There are apples so well-flavored and juicy and tender that they sell for five and ten cents apiece, and each apple lover has his favorite. But how many apple lovers can tell where or how his favorite originated? All the best kinds of apples just "grewed" like Topsy. None of them was evolved by propagation.

WILKINS THE WAITER

By MONA COWLES.

"It's all right about you fellows being college chaps," the hotel proprietors had told William Wilkins the day he signed the contract, "but it's something you will have to keep to yourself. Don't let anyone here at the hotel hear about it. You see another time I had a bunch of fellows from college and the girls in the hotel found it out and, being a little short of regular men that summer, why those girls just kept my waiters so busy with tensions and boating and dancing that the rest of the folks at the hotel next without getting waited on at all."

"That's all right," Wilkins assured.
"We won't bother the guests of the hotel. Of course, you haven't any objections to our leaving when work is over and forgetting the dignity of our office occasionally."

William Wilkins played his role of head waiter to perfection. One day toward the close of the season a very pretty, rather out-of-breath young girl approached him at luncheon time.

"You are the head waiter, aren't you?" the girl asked, and then, as he assured her that that was his dignity, she went on: "Well, I've got a proposition to put up to you and some of your men. It's for tomorrow night, after dinner. It is work that is a little out of your line, but you will be paid well. You see, we want fifteen of your best looking men. You must be one of them, to play the role of college men. The dance begins at nine. I suppose you could get there by that time."

"Of course, we'll consider it, ma'am, though it is asking a good deal of waiters—to go out and dance that way," Wilkins hesitated, suppressing a smile. "Of course, if I do say it, we're pretty good at wearing dress clothes."

"That's just why I decided to get you men to do the work. If you promise we are willing to pay five dollars a man and ten dollars for you."

Bradley's Women's college, in summer session, was only six miles away from the Benchview hotel, and the next night Wilkins and 15 of his waiters were gathered in immaculate evening dress inside the cozy rooms of the Alpha sorority house by the time the clock pointed to nine. The girl who had arranged the deal, radiant in white lace and lawn and pink roses, was the first of the Alpha girls to greet them. She took the headwaiter aside to explain. "I may as well tell you," she said, "what has happened.
We Alphas were giving a week-end for some of our younger grads and the Betas learned about it. The Betas are our deadly rivals," she explained.
"As soon as they found out the date
we had set for our dance they got up a dance of their own for the same night and asked every eligible, professor and man in town and got their acceptance before our invitations were out even. They did it just to be mean. Well, that left us high and dry.
We got our invitations all out before we knew about the trick the Betas had played and for the ten of us and the fifteen guests we had but ten men, and that was counting two hopeless old bachelors on the faculty and my own small brother that has never been to a party before in his life. We absolutely had to have fifteen more men.
Now you know what you are supposed to do. I am sure if all you men are as good imitations of the real college man as you look you will be a success."

It was toward the close of the last dance and the girl wasn't dancing. As chairman there were so many details for her to attend to. Then, from the dancers, her attention was attracted to a woman not in evening dress who advanced from the entrance hall toward her. It was the dean's secretary.

"I wanted to tell you," she said as she sat down beside the girl, "that the dean has heard that you girls are giving a dance tonight to which you have hired men to come—and that you couldn't get any other men, so you got a troupe of hotel waiters. One of the Beta girls found it out and, of course, she went and told the dean at once. I don't know what action will be taken, but the dean wants you to report at her house the first thing in the morning."

Just then the head waiter whose partner had excused herself, came toward the girl. She turned to him and asked the secretary to repeat to him the alarming news she had brought.

"Will you take this message back to the dean," he said. "Tell her that the Alphas have had a company of waiters here—" The girl tried to stop him, but he went on—"tell her that the Alphas have been dancing with those waiters all the evening, but that those waiters, like myself, are students whose disgrace—of course, we call it an honor—is that they must work for their college education. We have come as guests of the Alphas. The rumor that we were being paid for the privilege of coming must have been started as a joke."

As To Help Others."

Watoga, W. Va.—Mrs. S. W. Gladwell, of this town, says: "When about 15 years of age, I suffered greatly. Sometimes would go a month or two, and I had terrible headache, backache, and bearing-down pains, and would just drag and had no appetite. Then... it would last ... two weeks, and was so weakening, and my health was awful."

My mother bought me a bottle of Cardui, and I began to improve after taking the first bottle, so kept it up till I took three. I gained, and was well and strong, and I owe it all to Cardui.

I am married now and have 3 children ... Have never had to have a doctor for female trouble, and just resort to Cardui if I need a tonic. I am glad to testify to what it has done for me, so as to help others."

If you are nervous or weak, have headaches, backaches, or any of the other ailments so common to women, why not give Cardui a trial? Recommended by Patriotism.

It should be the work of a genuine and noble patriotism to raise the life of the nation to the level of its privileges; to harmonize its general practice with its abstract principles; to reduce to actual facts the ideals of its institutions; to elevate instruction into knowledge; to deepen knowledge into wisdom; to render knowledge and wisdom complete in righteousness and to make the love of country in the love of man.—Henry Giles.

Good sense must in many cases determine good breeding; because the same thing that would be civil at one otherwise at another time and to aneral rules of good breeding that hold them and how they can contribute directly to its support we have prepared a short pamphlet.

WAR! What Is It All About?

HAS the whole world gone stark mad over a very foolish and trivial question? Are swords rattling, cannon rumbling, mailed armor clashing just because Russia wanted to show her love for the little brother—Serbia? Tear aside the curtain of Europe's politics and see the grim and sinister game of chess that is being played. See upon what a slim, yet desperate, excuse the sacred lives of millions are being sacrificed. Read the history of the past one hundred years, as written by some of the greatest authorities the world has ever known, and learn the naked, shameful truth. Just to get you started as a Review of Reviews subscriber, we make you this extraordinary offer. We will give to you

FREE—"Europe at War"

A big book and over 300 pages, size 10 x 7 inches, handsomely and durably bound in cloth, containing the dramatic history of the great events leading up to the present time; over 50 important and timely special articles by experts on the different phases of the conflict; hundreds of graphic pictures, portraits, photographs, diagrams, specially drawn war maps, illuminating statistical records, copies of official documents and diplomatic messages exchanged between the powers—a clear, vivid, accurate, permanent, interesting and valuable record—a record which once seen you will not willingly be without. Europe's past and present are here dramatically pictured and presented. Hundreds of illustrations graphically tell their own stories. More fascinating than any romance, here is a history so vivid, so dramatic, so stirring, so fascinating, so realistic, so wonderfully presented, so thrillingly told that it leaves an indelible impression.

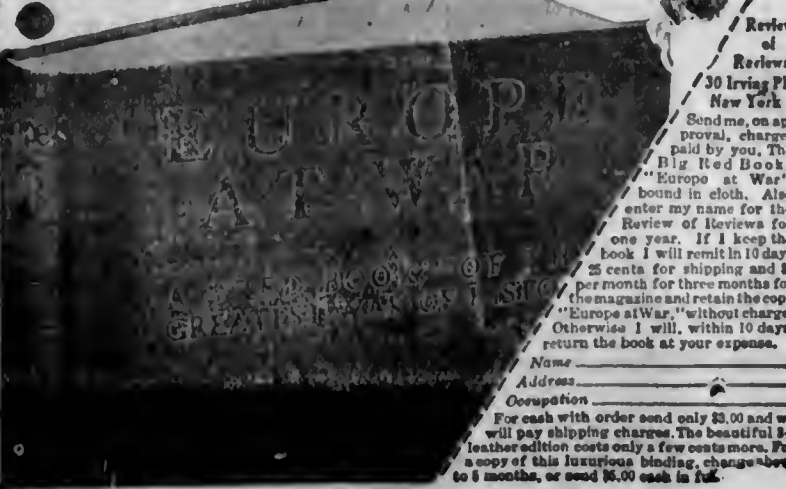

Your War News Clarified

It is not enough to read the daily news reports. Your ability to comprehend conditions and to discuss them rationally depends on a true interpretation of the meaning and the "reason why" of events. In your mind you must bring order out of chaos and the "Review of Reviews" will do it for you.

Lincoln McConnell—He Can Crack Paint on Wooden Indian's Cheek

RALPH PARLETTE says this about Lincoln McConnell: "I wish everybody who doesn't like lectures could hear him. I wish the king who never smiled again would sit in on a McConnell outburst. He can crack the paint on a wooden Indian's cheek. He can get juice out of a tombstone and flowers out of a snow bank. He can read a page from the Congressional Record and convulse you or a chapter from Webster's Unabridged and make you scream. And all the time be saving you!"

"He enjoys the lectures as much as anybody. He smacks his lips—the sentences taste so good. His face clouds, cartoons, brightens. He hammers away and just with the devil in the last ditch he stops and saves everybody with a smile."

"Remember, he is tremendously serious. You laugh, yell and cheer, you wipe the tears out of your eyes and push your ribs back into place and realize you have risen. It was a sermon all the time with the fun and side show just to save things. The audience has been shot and spanked and slugged, but everybody sees it was needed."

Lincoln McConnell has been lecturing under the title of "The Live Wire of the Chautauqua Platform" for ten years. He has averaged one address a day during the past eighteen years. His lecture time is sold five years ahead. He is a lawyer, minister and evangelist. He lectures on "Dead Lions," "Happy Homes" and "Does It Pay?" He will be here the last day of the Chautauqua to deliver one address in the afternoon and another at night.

WORKERS IN JAPAN RECKLESS

Result is That Accidents in Mills and Building Operations Appear to Be on the Increase.

Accidents in the mills, furnaces, factories and in building operations appear to be greatly on the increase in Japan, according to the Tokyo newspapers, says East and West. The Nichi-Nichi (Every Day) has set on foot an investigation, extending over nearly every branch of operative labor, and the conclusion reached is that many workmen are dissatisfied with their lots. Doubtless, growing discontent is due to tales of fabulous wages paid to working men and women in munition factories of the United States and Great Britain. Japan has supplied Russia with vast quantities of cartridges and weapons of all kinds, but the wages of her workmen have not been materially advanced. This is due to the claim that goods so supplied to their ally have yielded only fair profit—that there has not been any attempt by the Japanese people to "get rich quickly." The Nichi-Nichi finds that, due to the uncertainty of their positions, Japanese workmen are prone to grow reckless. They become unsteady and are often injured by being caught off their guard at work.

Eskimo Carving.

All of the Eskimo carving today is done with steel tools, but there is work in existence that dates back to the stone age. The older Eskimos say that their ancestors used tools of flint, and it is known that they have been carving ivory for many generations. Some of the very poorest of them and those that live in the most out-of-the-way places are noted for their work of this kind. They seem to do it for pastime, and make many toys and dolls for their children. They have a way of softening the bone, horn, or ivory before they work it, and to make the carvings more distinct they etch lines on the surface with a black paint made of a mixture of gunpowder and blood. This, when put on the freshly-cut bone, makes a permanent stain.

Some Don't Get Back.

The dusky tonsorial artist nervously busied himself among his implements of torture as the tired business man sank into the operating chair and prepared to rest while his stubble was being removed. The barber tucked in the ample bib, lathered the passive face and opened his conversational batteries.

"Ah just got back from a funeral," ventured the ebony as a starter. The tired B. M. opened one eye, cleared the lather out of the corner of his mouth and in a biting tone retorted:

"You ought to be blamed glad to get back—a good many people don't."

And the shave continued amid a profound silence.—Columbus (O.) Dispatch.

The Baby's Bath.

A word of warning to inexperienced young mothers: Never put the baby in water while the tub is standing over a heater, because many a baby has been severely burned in this way. Nor should you ever leave a young baby alone in the tub. If the phone or doorbell rings while baby is in the bath, and you have no maid to answer it, you will have to let it go unanswered until the baby is dried and wrapped up warmly.

How Times Have Changed.

It was raining heavily the other day when one of the uptown public schools was dismissed. In front of the school, waiting for the children, were nurses, mere parents, chauffeurs and relatives, and all of them were burdened with umbrellas, overshoes, raincoats and wraps. As the children came out they were huddled up and hurried away. An old man with a clay pipe upside down thrust between his teeth stood watching the picture while the rain splashed his damp person. "Covering 'em up like plants," he said. "Overshoes, umbrellas and the like. Say, when I was a boy this rain would have been good for us. We did not have any shoes, let alone overshoes, and as for umbrellas, why, we'd punch the kid's eye that would use one. Oh, well," he sighed, philosophically, "times change."—New York Times.

"An Eye for an Eye."

"Lex talionis" means the law of retaliation. It provided that the punishment should be the same in kind as the crime. Thus we have the expressions, "An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth," "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man shall his blood be shed." Many other expressions like these are found in the Bible and elsewhere.

HER'S PARTY

By JANE OSBORN.

Whenever Grandma Bliss invited her grandchildren to a party they gave up whatever else they might have had on and accepted. This was not because of the fact that Grandma Bliss was quite well-to-do, and had the only considerable fortune in the entire Bliss family, but because, in her own quaint way, she was one of the most entertaining and refreshing little ladies in the world.

So on the occasion of her seventy-seventh birthday, when she issued invitations to her grandchildren for the evening at the hotel where she lived with her companion, the whole six of them turned up—Nina, the plump beauty of the family; Tom, also rotund and ease loving Bob, who was studying law and Margaret, a spoiled child who had never really accomplished anything in her twenty years of girlhood. And there was Margaret's brother, Ned, and laughing-eyed Rose, the poorest of the cousins.

Grandmother sat on her cushioned divan after the dinner was over. "We are going to play a little pencil-and-paper game," she began. "And before I tell you anything at all about it I am going to ask each one of you to write down on a piece of paper just exactly what he or she would like most to do in the world—an ambition as yet ungratified. Don't hesitate to be frank," grandmother went on, "for no one but I will see the answers."

Then the young heads around her were bent in thought, and, before five minutes had passed grandmother had all the pieces of paper in her hand.

"Now the game begins," she said. "You know I have quite a little fortune that is rather more than I have ever needed to take care of my own wants. As you know, you children are my only heirs, and some day shall each have your share. But I am only seventy-seven, and I want you to enjoy a little of it before I have gone."

"One thing I have noticed lately since you have grown up," grandmother went on, "is that you are not quite contented. I want you to find the contentment that comes of accomplishing your ambition, and in order to find out what that ambition is I have drawn you into my little trap."

"Now I want each one of you to set about to achieve this ambition. For everyone who does there will be five thousand dollars at the time of the achievement. For the first one to achieve it within three months of the present date there will be ten thousand dollars."

A month later Rose sat in the roughly furnished waiting room of Mrs. McGinty's employment agency. A look of real discouragement was on her face and in the chairs around her sat other discouraged looking ones.

Cooks were scarce, and Mrs. McGinty had made many calls, so before the day was spent Rose had again found a "place." As she went out of the door, just a hit faint from her long wait, she saw her cousin Ned.

"Isn't it funny how often I see you?" Rose began. "Only two days ago I met you this way—after I had been discharged from Mrs. Bliss's."

"I never used to see much of you before—before grandma's birthday party."

Nothing more was said of Grandma Bliss or her scheme till Rose had been refreshed by tea and toast. Then Ned's curiosity got the better of him.

"I am sure whatever you are doing, you are doing in order to carry out your ambition—but what that ambition has got to do with hanging round employment agencies is more than I know."

"Oh, I didn't want to tell you," Rose said. "I was such a foolish ambition, and I don't want the cousins to know. You see, I had got so tired of working in offices that I wrote down on the slip that my ambition was to make somebody think I was a perfect cook."

I suppose it was silly, because I have never had much practice, and of course I didn't mean to go out as somebody's cook."

"What did you mean?" persisted Ned.

Rose blushed a little. "I suppose that I meant to be somebody's wife, though of course I couldn't go out and marry the first man that asked me, and be miserable all the rest of my life just for the bonus."

Just for a second Ned looked even more confused than Rose. Then he talked quick and low. "Couldn't you possibly marry me? I didn't think I'd ever have the nerve to ask you. You're so—so wonderful."

"But, Ned, I couldn't marry you just to get the money. That is—I think I would be willing to marry you and cook and everything, and make you think I cooked beautifully—but I couldn't do it just to win the bonus. Then I'd never know whether you really loved me."

"That's easy enough," Ned's voice was triumphant. "You see I wrote my ambition thus: 'To marry Cousin Rose.' Grandma knew I loved you, so I didn't tell her. But I didn't hope to win—now, well, I've been following you closely ever since. I didn't know what you were going to do."

"Look here, Rose," Ned jumped up, "the tea table and I'll go by in a minute. Let's get married right away, as soon as we can get the license and things. Then we'll both get the bonus. I'd be willing to take my oath you're the best cook in the world—and grandma will take my word for it."

CUPID ON THE PHONE

By LOUISE OLIVER.

The president of the Midway and Northern and Mr. Dill, his private secretary, were seated beside the great center table in John B. Stoughton's office. Mr. Stoughton himself, seated opposite, was trying his best to look as if railroad presidents and their satellites were customary visitors. He smoked one of his own 50-cent cigars, a dozen of which he had kept in the safe for months for just such a longed-for emergency.

On the table was a map of a certain section of a certain state with dotted lines running over it like a dressmaker's guide, and here and there great blotches of black ink that evidently had something to do with the present conference, for every now and then the president or Mr. Dill would lean forward and trace around these pieces with well-manicured forefingers. Mr. Stoughton was playing the part of listener.

"You see," explained the president, "it wouldn't do for the people in these sections to discover that we are running these branch lines into their country."

The telephone rang just then. Mr. Stoughton looked annoyed. There was no office girl to answer it, for so far he had not needed the services of one. Legal papers, all that he had, could be copied by the public stenographer across the hall.

The president settled back in his chair as the phone with automatic regularity sounded its staccato notes. There was no use in trying to compete with it for the young lawyer's attention. Mr. Stoughton went over to his desk and took down the receiver.

"Hello!"

"Is that you, Jack?"

"Yes."

"What are you doing?"

"Busy."

"Oh, pshaw! You're always busy."

"I'll call you later," answered Jack.

The president picked up his words precisely where he had left off. He was not accustomed to repeating. "—on account of the coal deposits. So far they are not even aware that it is there. But we have had experts throughout the three counties for a year and find that the whole district is rich. The thing is that if we buy up that property, even on an option, in our own name—"

The telephone rang again. Mr. Stoughton's hands closed tight as if he would like to choke its metallic throat. The president again sat back in his chair and the secretary drummed impatiently on the table.

"Hello!" called Jack, answering its insistent ring for the second time.

"Jackie, dear! I'm so sorry I was cross," came Marjorie's voice, "and I know you didn't mean to be rude. I've been thinking about you all day, and how lovely it will be when we're married and have our little bungalow up on the hill. It's just like a fairy tale, isn't it, Jackie?"

"Yes!" responded Jack, in as businesslike a tone as he could command. "Perhaps I'd better call you later—I'm very busy just now."

"Oh—all right," coldly.

And again he returned to the table. "—there's going to be hold-up when we try to get our right of way," the president continued. "So our company has decided to engage the services of an attorney to handle the situation, get all options in his own name and to handle the situation generally. Our own lawyer would not do for the reason I mentioned. Now as to a commission—of course, it would mean—"

The telephone rang again. The secretary jumped up and walked the floor and the president this time looked very much annoyed.

"Hello!" he called for the third time.

"Jack, don't be cross, please. But I've been crying, crying; think of it. You've acted so queerly today. I'm so miserable because I know you don't love me any more!"

"Why, I do, dear!"

"Then you'll have to say it, the whole thing, 'I love you—Marjorie,' just like, before I'll believe you."

He obeyed. "I love you, Marjorie."

What else was there for it?

The railroad president pushed back his chair and got up, and when Jack left the phone his visitors had their maps folded and their hats, coats and sticks ready to depart.

"We had better take up the matter at some future time when you're not so busy, Mr. Stoughton."

"Some other time, perhaps," was the answer as he bowed them out. But Jack knew that he had lost thousands of dollars forever.

"Dearie," said Jack that evening when they were out in the garden, a paradise of sweet spring fragrance that was intoxicating, "we can't ever build that bungalow if we aren't careful. I lost a good chance today." And then he told her as tactfully as he could what had happened.

"The Midway and Northern! Why, that's Uncle Ben! I told him to go to you, and I'll just interrupt him all I like. I'll tell him to go right back in the morning!" And the rest of the conversation doesn't concern us at all. (Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

HISTORIC DAVIS BELL

Taken Down and Hid In a Sink Hole 100 Years.

Ed Wilkins reports that more has been learned about the Davis Bell, of which mention was made in Saturday's paper.

He says it has been found out that the bell was sold by Samuel Davis, father of Jefferson Davis, to A. J. Kenner and subsequently in some sort of dispute over the bell, which hung near the north gate to the present park, the bell disappeared and was probably hid in a sink hole and was found 100 years later where the sink hole had been filled up.

Two Soldiers Killed

Covington, Ky., May 24.—William S. Harris, 17 years old, of Woodburn, Ky., a member of Company A, Second Kentucky Regiment, was struck by a Louisville & Nashville railroad train near Falmouth this morning and probably fatally injured. He was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Covington, where it was found necessary to amputate his legs. Capt. James P. Dillon, of Company A, accompanied him to the hospital.

Word was received here from Fort Bliss, Texas, that Jesse J. Davenport, of Covington, connected with the Hospital Corps, was killed by a train at that place.

Summer Colds Weaken

They are even more dangerous than winter colds, for they hang on so long that they become chronic catarrh. Heat and dust aggravate them, cause the infected surface to spread, and fill the body with systemic catarrh. Neglect costs health and energy.

PERUNA EXPELS CATARRH

It does more—it builds up the weakened system, regulates the digestion, removes the inflammation, overcomes the poisons of catarrh, and invigorates all over. Forty-four years of success proves its great value, of which thousands gladly testify.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Beginning Thursday, the High School will be the scene of weeping and wailing to some and a place of joy to others, for final examinations begin on that day. Those who weep will be those who have laughed at study during the year, and those who laugh will be those who have burned the midnight oil for the last ten months.

The High School Annual is out and is one of the best ever gotten out by the school. The photography is splendid and those who have subscribed for the Annual are well pleased with the colored plates, which are new features in this year's Annual.

The senior class is getting ready for class day and everybody who comes out to the Tabernacle on the 6th will hear one of the best programs ever offered by a graduating class.

Louisville Suffered Some.

Damage estimated at thousands of dollars resulted from a severe electrical storm which swept over Louisville the greater part of Sunday. The steeple of the First German Baptist church, Hancock street and Broadway, was unroofed by the high wind, which, at times, raged at a rate of sixty-two miles an hour. Crops and buildings in outskirts suffered.

Americans Held.

According to a report received through the Geneva Red Cross, ninety-seven Americans are held as hostages by Germany, and one treated badly. It is said a majority of them were taken before the declaration of a state of war, and, under international law, should be released.

Senate Makes Changes.

The entire section of the house War Tax Bill, levying 5 per cent. taxes on the gross sales of many industries, was struck out by the Senate Finance Committee with an understanding that other taxes in different form and probably reduced amounts would be substituted. Greatly increased surtaxes on big incomes also were stricken out.

Leo Darcy, Australian pugilist, died at Memphis Thursday.

Two men were shot from ambush near Crab Orchard, Ky.

PEMBROKE STRAWBERRIES

Several Cars Shipped—Quality of Berries the Best.

The Christian County Strawberry Association shipped four cars, or 10,080 gallons of berries last week. Two cars went to Chicago and the others to Evansville. The season has been such that the berries have not ripened as rapidly, as formerly, but the quality is better than ever before. The berries are richly colored and the flavor is ideal. Due to the soil conditions in Christian, our berries are far superior in taste and appearance to those of Warren county. With weather conditions favorable the berry crop this year will be one of the finest anywhere. The association expected to ship three more cars yesterday. The market is good and top prices are prevailing. Success is assured for the association and next year will bring both better berries through experience, and a greater acreage, and make Christian county the best strawberry section in the state.

HOWELL.

A very interesting program was rendered at Howell High School last Friday and Saturday nights. This ended our school term after a year of hard work. We expect to have our same faculty next year.

Miss Martha Gary returned to her home near Hopkinsville Friday morning, after a week's visit to Miss Bertha Clardy.

Mrs. James Lewis was the guest of Mrs. Whitfield Radford last week.

Misses Mollie and Elizabeth Gary spent the week with Mrs. C. W. Garrett.

Mrs. W. A. Haynes will entertain the Howell Book Club Wednesday.

Miss Bertha Clardy will visit friends in Nashville this week and later on will visit friends in Murfreesboro.

Miss Elizabeth Fox and Professor McGinley spent the week after the closing of school with Howell friends.

Miss Flossie Griffin, of Winterland, Florida, and Mr. Edward Cross, of Oak Grove, will be married at the bride's home June 5th.

A SUMMER'S CAMPAIGN

Among the Progressive Live-Stock Dealers of Kentucky.

The Kentucky Pure Bred Live Stock Association will hold a series of community meetings throughout the State during the summer months. These meetings will start in the Penyrile the first week in June and will wind up in the mountains the first week in August.

The object of these meetings is to enlist the greatest possible number of breeders in the work of this organization. The main purposes of the State Live Stock Association are to improve the live stock conditions of the state; to encourage the production of more pure bred live stock and to establish a marketing bureau for the sale of pure bred stock. If all the breeders band together in one association they will be able to maintain a publicity bureau, which will let the public know at all times what Kentucky is doing in the live stock world and what she has for sale.

At each meeting the representatives of the association will take up with the breeders the question of community breeding or the standardization of breeds in the various counties. With the world crises which now confronts us it is incumbent upon the breeders of every state to conserve their breeding stock. This is especially true in the pure bred line. And by all means the most intelligent and systematic way of increasing the production of pure bred stock is to be standardized in each county.

The association will also undertake to hold public sales in all parts of the State. At each meeting representatives of the association will discuss with the breeders of that section the advisability of holding a public sale in that district the coming fall. It will be left to the discretion of the breeder to decide whether breed sales or a combination sale including several different breeds will be held.

At each meeting the Pure Bred Live Stock Association will be represented by one or more of the following directors:

Judge I. H. Thurman, Springfield, Ky., C. E. Marvin, Paynes Depot, Ky., W. S. Gibbs, Shelbyville, Ky., J. H. Gray, Pisgah, Ky., H. O. Moxley, Shelbyville, Ky., C. R. Harmon, Lebanon, Ky., W. R. FOR PRESERVING EGGS

Be Sure Eggs are Cooled Before Submerging in The Solution.

Water glass or soluble glass is a popular term for potassium or sodium silicate and is commonly sold in the form of a soapy liquid. It can be bought for 2 to 10 cents a pound. In making a water glass solution for preserving eggs, boil pure water and allow it to cool, then to each 10 quarts of water add from 1 pint to a quart of water glass.

By either the lime water method or the use of water glass, eggs can be kept in good condition for six months to a year.

In preserving eggs in these materials use only fresh eggs. Before treating they should be allowed to become thoroughly cooled. The solution in which they are kept should be cold also. If the eggs are kept at a high temperature, 70 to 80 degrees F., they deteriorate rapidly in spite of the preservative. They should be stored in a cool, dark place. The nearer 35 degrees F., they can be held the better the eggs will keep. A 5-gallon solution of water glass is sufficient to cover 50 dozen eggs. Eggs thus preserved in water glass at the North Dakota Station, for three and one-half months, were fully equal to fresh market eggs for cooking, making frosting, etc. Water glass can be bought in all drug stores.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

Little Lame Girl Wins Beban's Heart.

Hereafter no request for an autographed photo of George Beban, the distinguished character actor, will ever be refused.

"Since my advent in pictures," says Beban, "I had steadfastly ignored all photographic requests until the receipt of a letter from a little lame girl in Columbus, Ohio. The letter was so appealing that I made an exception and mailed the photo requested. Her reply thanking me for the photo was the most pathetic thing I have ever read."

"For five years the poor child had been bedridden and only recently had been able to be moved about in a wheel chair and in this manner she had been taken for an occasional visit to the movies. Her only pleasure in life, she said, was the collecting of photographs of her favorite players. With these before her the poor child would forget her pain for the moment in picturing the actors in the characters which they had enacted upon the screen or in building about them fairy stories in which the actor and herself played the leading roles."

"It was then that I experienced a change of heart, feeling that there may be many to whom the sending of a photo might bring at least a momentary pleasure. Since that time no request for an autographed photo has ever been disregarded by me and while each day, at the Morosco studios in Los Angeles, I receive many requests from people in all walks of life and in ages varying from eight to eighty, I consider it a pleasure to personally see that each wish is gratified."

Tax Officials.

City Assessor John Buechel, of Louisville, will be made expert adviser of the Kentucky Tax Commission, which will be composed of State Auditor Robert L. Greene, Attorney General M. M. Logan, both of whom will resign their present positions, and J. A. Scott, of Pikeville. Ben Marshall, Collector of Internal Revenue, has been selected as secretary. Assistant Attorney General Charles H. Morris will succeed Mr. Logan.

Gold Money of World.
The gold money of all countries of the world for which statistics were available in 1906 aggregated $4,144,000,000, while on January 1, 1910, it was $9,259,000,000. Silver money of the same countries in 1906 amounted to $4,237,000,000 and in 1910, $2,441,000,000. Of the gold money recorded in 1896 the three largest holders were France, Germany and the United States, while at present they are the United States, France and Russia. During this twenty-year period of the United States shows an increase in gold holdings of 231.7 per cent, Russia 116.6 per cent, and France 70.3 per cent. In December, 1910, gold in the United States was $2,741,000,000 as compared with $672,000,000 in 1896. Of the $18,300,000,000 gold produced in the world since the discovery of America, $3,380,000,000 was produced in the United States, while of the $15,500,000,000 of silver produced in the same time $1,800,000,000 was produced in the United States. During 1916 alone we imported over $600,000,000 in gold.

The painful paroxysms which mark this disease can often be relieved by breathing the fumes of turpentine and carbolic acid.

Stains on Leather.
Ink stains on brown leather can be removed by a weak solution of oxalic acid. Apply with a small paint brush, but only allow a few minutes to elapse before wiping the solution away. Two or three applications may be necessary to remove an old deep-seated stain.

SALMON MAKES GOOD FOOD

Declared to Be Not Only the Most Nutritious but the Very Cheapest.

If the housewife only knew it, salmon is the cheapest and at the same time most nutritious food that can be eaten. This is the assertion of James T. Barron of Portland, Ore., a correspondent of the Washington Post states. According to Mr. Barron, salmon contains more nutriment than beef, or quite as much at any rate, and it is far cheaper.

"Salmon is one of the few articles of food that is better when canned than when eaten fresh. Canned, the salmon retains all the oil, whereas if cooked fresh much of the oil is wasted. The cheapness of salmon makes it a desirable food when one is trying to solve the high cost of living problem. Red salmon is higher in price than the pink salmon, but in fact the latter is better.

"The importance of the Alaskan fisheries is demonstrated by the increasing output of the canneries. There are something like 100 packers in Alaska, and the pack has increased since 1907 from 2,171,741 cases to 4,916,030, which is the estimated pack of salmon for the year 1916. Compared with the Puget Sound pack, which in 1916 was estimated to be 710,318, Alaska looms up large, and this comparison shows the great development of the Alaskan fisheries. It is only a question of time when the Alaskan fisheries will exceed in value all other products of the territory. This may appear remarkable to the mind of the average Easterner, whose imagination regarding Alaska is that only gold is produced there. The fact is that Alaska is a wonderful country. It is cold there at times, but I have seen it colder right here in Washington on occasion; at any rate, it appeared to me colder.

"The approximate value of the Alaska pack for last year has been estimated to be $23,803,390, while that of Puget Sound is estimated at $3,675,561."

DRINKING WATER IN GUTTERS

However, the Ladies of the Andean Capital Also Bathe in It.

Ibague, capital of the Colombian province of Tolima, claims 2,300 "souls," but the count takes much for granted. It is a square-cornered town of almost wholly thatched one-story buildings. Its wide streets atrociously cobbled and its few sidewalks worn perilously slippery and barely wide enough for two feet at once.

A stream of crystal-clear water gurgles down every street through cobbled gutters, lulling the travel-weary to sleep and furnishing a convenient means of washing photographic films. We drank less often, however, after we had strolled up to the end of the mountain and found three none-too-handsome ladies bathing in the reservoir.

It is a peaceful, roomy place, where everyone has unlimited space on the grassy, gentle slope to put up his little chukky, straw-roofed cottage, yet all too close to the street line as if fearful of missing anything that might unexpectedly pass. Foreigners seem to be a great novelty, and I could find no satisfactory reason why so many Baguenos were blind, unless they had overindulged themselves in the national game of staring.—Harry A. Franck, in the Century Magazine.

Sheep-Killing Parrot.

In the kea, or mountain parrot, of New Zealand we see the harmless vegetable-eating bird transformed into a vicious bird of prey within the space of a few decades. Having got a taste of sheep fat from the dozen carcasses hanging on the meat galleys at the ranch houses during the cold winters, they soon learned to attack the live sheep. These attacks became so frequent that a bounty had to be placed upon the head of every kea.—National Geographic Magazine.

The Education of Father.

The New York Post prints this letter that a father sent to his son at college:

"Dear Harold: Your brief letter came today. I am inclosing the check for the amount you requested. I have heard a great deal of the college faculty. I take it to be the faculty for spending money. Affectionately, Father.—Youth's Companion.

"Are you sure that the room you have to let is quiet?" asked the timid young man.

"Ah! Rest assured of that," said the landlady. "There is a singer in the next room, and it must be quiet, or she couldn't practice."

A Motor Shovel.

In unloading ore or coal from the holds of vessels on the Great Lakes there is always a certain amount of material in corners and between latches that cannot be reached by the unloading buckets. The dock superintendent at Buffalo has designed a motor-driven scraper shovel that moves such material much faster than it can be moved by hand. The machine carries a shovel that can be raised and dumped automatically, but whenever possible the ore or coal is pushed underneath the latch openings, where the unloading buckets haul it out of the ship. The power-scraper shovel is said to do the work of from 12 to 40 shovellers, according to the type of boat; and to save from one to five hours' time in the unloading process.

THE "KHAKI WOMAN."

The "khaki woman" was something of a shock to the British public at first, but her training and discipline have been justified. When the Zeppelins first attacked London the woman's ambulance was the first on the scene to remove the dead and the injured. The corps rendered sterling service at the time of the recent East end explosion, and even now, every Sunday, they take the children who are suffering from shock into the country in the hope of restoring their shattered nerves.

Gorilla Closely Resembles Man.

The gorilla is man's nearest relative on the earth today. He is so much like a man that in all likelihood, according to Doctor Gregory, he would in the course of ages develop into a very human sort of creature, if his species were permitted to survive. Unfortunately, he will not enjoy the opportunity, because his race is being rapidly exterminated.

THE PENALTY OF OVERWORK

Many Hopkinsville People Are Beginning to Feel The Strain.

The heavy tax of overwork—the extra strain so necessary to many trades and occupations is hard on the kidneys. The kidneys begin to fail in their work and the poisonous matter collects in the system. If your work seems hard for you, if you have a lame, weak or aching back, if you seem tired and listless, if you notice sediment in the urine, unnatural color or irregular passages and seem to be running down without apparent cause, begin at once with Doan's Kidney Pills, the remedy that has proven so beneficial to your neighbors. It has brought strength to the backs of thousands of working men and women. Read Hopkinsville proof:

O. J. Willis, 534 O'Neal Avenue, Hopkinsville, says: "Overstraining at my work caused my kidneys to become weak. My back ached dreadfully. I was so sore and lame I could hardly lift anything or do any stooping. My kidneys acted too frequently and annoyed me day and night. I used Doan's Kidney Pills as directed and they went right to the spot, ridding me of the backaches and putting my kidneys in good order."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Willis had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

Waste No Food

Food Waste of About 700 Million Dollars.

"For partial immediate relief, every individual and community should consider earnestly the matter of food conservation and the limitation of waste. As a Nation we seem to have a disdain of economizing. In many homes there is a strong feeling that it is 'only decent' to provide more than will be eaten and that it is demeaning to reckon closely. The experts of the Department of Agriculture report to me that the dietary studies made by them point to an annual food waste of about $700,000,000. Of course, the waste in families of very limited means is slight, but in the families of moderate and ample means the waste is considerable. Even if the estimate were reduced by half, the waste would still be enormous.

"The food waste in the household, the experts assert, results in large measure from bad preparation and bad cooking, from improper care and handling, and, in well-to-do families, from serving an undue number of courses and an over-abundant supply and failing to save and utilize the food not consumed. As an instance of improper handling, it is discovered that in the preparation of potatoes 20 per cent of the edible portion in many cases is discarded."—SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE, March 3, 1917.

Food is Wasted

(a) When we eat more food than our bodies need for growth and repair and to supply energy for our work. Overeating tends to poor health and fat instead of brawn, makes us sluggish and indolent instead of energetic and resourceful. Eat enough and no more. Eat for physical and mental efficiency.

(b) When food is burned or spoiled in cooking. Improperly prepared or poorly seasoned food will be left on the table and probably wasted. Buy food wisely and then prepare it carefully.

(c) When too much food is prepared for a meal. Unserved portions are apt to be thrown into the garbage pail or allowed to spoil. Many housekeepers do not know how to use left-over foods to make appetizing dishes.

(d) When too much food is served at a meal. Uneaten portions are left on the plate and later thrown into the garbage pail. Learn to know the needs of your family, and serve each no more than you think he will want.

(e) When anything edible is allowed to go to the garbage pail or allowed to spoil for lack of proper handling.

(f) When food is handled carelessly. Buy clean food, keep it clean until used, be neat in all details of cooking and serving. This lessens waste and is a valuable health measure as well.

Feed Your Own Family First

Don't feed high-priced human food to hogs or chickens. Don't send valuable food to the incinerator or the fertilizer heap. Don't pour into the sewer nourishing food in the shape of milk, skim milk, sweet or sour soup, gravy, or melted fat, or water in which cereals or vegetables have been cooked. Keep good food out of your garbage pail and kitchen sink.

Both Friend and Foe of Farmer.
Crows do the farmer about as much harm as good, according to the biological survey of the department of agriculture which has completed a monograph on the relation of crows to man. The essential conclusions are that crows are about equally beneficial and injurious, and that they are so wary and sagacious as not to need legal protection. Lack of this, while not endangering the species, will permit farmers to protect their crops or other property whenever necessary.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION OF THE NEW YORK WORLD

IN 1917

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly. No other Newspaper in the world gives so much at so low a price.

The value and need of a newspaper in the household was never greater than at the present time. The great war in Europe is now half way into its third year, and, whether peace be at hand or yet be far off, it and the events to follow it are sure to be of absorbing interest for many a month to come.

These are world-shaking affairs, in which the United States, willing or unwilling, is compelled to take a part. No intelligent person can ignore such issues.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and the

HOPKINSVILLE KENTUCKIAN (Tri-weekly,) together for one year for $2.65. The regular subscription price of the two papers is $3.00

Could Not Be Spared.

Helen got into the bad habit of running away to some of her playmates' homes, and her mamma finally put a stop to it by tying her up a few times as a punishment. The other day she wanted a new rope to replace a broken and worn-out one on her sled, but her father wasn't able to locate one around the house. Then Helen said: "I know where there's a piece of rope, but that's the one mamma ties me up with when I run away."

Old English Physicians.

The England of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries was a rich field for physicians, and their influence was extended in many directions. Some were very serious-minded persons who did much to advance medical science—others were famed for their adroit ways of amassing wealth. If England has produced Doctor Arbuthnot, it has also had such practitioners as gruff Huns Sloane, who growled at his aristocratic patients instead of flattering them.

President Issues a Proclamation Putting Selective Draft Into Effect

Washington.—President Wilson's proclamation, putting into effect the selective draft provision of the war army bill, follows:

A Proclamation By the President of the United States.

Whereas, Congress has enacted and the president has, on the 18th day of May, one thousand nine hundred and seventeen, approved a law which contains the following provisions:

Section 5.—That all male persons between the ages of 21 and 30, both inclusive, shall be subject to registration in accordance with regulations to be prescribed by the president; and upon proclamation by the president or other public notice given by him or by his direction, stating the time and place of such registration, it shall be the duty of all persons of designated ages, except officers and enlisted men of the regular army, the navy and the national guard and naval militia while in the service of the United States, to present themselves for and submit to registration under the provisions of this act; and every such person shall be deemed to have notice of the requirements of this act upon the publication of said proclamation or other notice as aforesaid given by the president, or by his direction; and any persons who shall willfully fail or refuse to present himself for registration or to submit thereto as herein provided, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall, upon conviction in the district court of the United States having jurisdiction thereof, be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year, and shall thereupon be duly registered.

Provided, That in the call of the docket precedence shall be given, in the courts trying the same, to the trial of criminal proceedings under this act.

Provided, further, That persons shall be subject to registration as herein provided, who shall have attained their twenty-first birthday and who shall not have attained their thirty-first birthday on or before the day set for registration, and all persons so registered shall be and remain subject to draft into the forces hereby authorized; unless exempted or excused therefrom as in this act provided.

Provided, further, That in the case of temporary absence from actual place of legal residence of any person liable to registration as provided herein, such registration may be made by mail under registrations to be prescribed by the president.

Frauds Provided Against.

Section 6.—That the president is hereby authorized to utilize the service of any or all departments and any or all officers or agents of the United States and of the several states, territories, and the District of Columbia, and subdivisions thereof, in the execution of this act, and all officers and agents of the United States and of the several states, territories and subdivisions thereof, and of the District of Columbia, and all persons designated or appointed under registration prescribed by the president, whether such appointments are made by the president himself or by the governor or other officer of any state or territory to perform any duty in the execution of this act, are hereby required to perform such duty as the president shall order or direct, and all such officers and agents and persons so designated or appointed shall hereby have full authority for all acts done by them in the execution of this act by the direction of the president.

Correspondence in the execution of this act may be carried in penalty envelopes bearing the frank of the war department. Any persons charged as herein provided with the duty of carrying into effect any of the provisions of the act or the regulations made or directions given thereunder who shall fail or neglect to perform such duty, and any person charged with such duty, or having and exercising any authority under said act, regulations or directions, who shall knowingly make or be a party to the making of any false or incorrect registration, physical examination, exemption, enlistment, enrollment, or muster; and any person who shall make or be a party to the making of any false statement or certificate as to the fitness or liability of himself or any other person for service under the provisions of this act, or regulations made by the president thereunder, or otherwise evade or aids another to evade the requirements of this act, or of said regulations, or who, in any manner, shall fail or neglect fully to perform any duty required of him in the execution of this act, shall, if not subject to military law, be guilty of a misdemeanor, and upon conviction in the district court of the United States having jurisdiction thereof, be punished by imprisonment for not more than one year; or, if subject to military law, shall be tried by court-martial and suffer such punishment as a court-martial may direct.

Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, president of the United States, do call upon the governor of each of the several states and territories, the board of commissioners of the District of Columbia and all officers and agents of the several states and territories, of the District of Columbia, and of the counties and municipalities therein, to perform certain duties in the execution of the foregoing law, which duties will be communicated to them directly in regulations of even date herewith.

June 5 To Be Registration Day.

And I do further proclaim and give notice to all persons subject to registration in the several states and in the District of Columbia in accordance with the above law, that the time and place of such registration shall be between 7 a.m. and 9 p.m. on the 5th day of June, 1917, at the registration places in the precinct wherein they have their permanent homes. Those who shall have attained their twenty-first birthday, and who shall not have attained their thirty-first birthday on or before the day here named, are required to register, excepting only officers and enlisted men of the regular army, the navy, the marine corps, and the national guard, and naval militia while in the service of the United States, and officers in the officers' reserve corps and enlisted men in the enlisted reserve corps while in active service in the territories of Alaska, Hawaii and Porto Rico a day for registration will be named in a later proclamation.

And I do charge those who through sickness shall be unable to present themselves for registration, that they apply on or before the day of registration to the county clerk where they may be for instructions as to how they may be registered by agents. Those who expect to be absent on the day named from the counties in which they have their permanent homes, may register by mail, but their mailed registration cards must reach the place in which they have their permanent homes by the day named herein. They should apply as soon as practicable to the county clerk of the county wherein they may be for instructions as to how they may accomplish their registration by mail.

In case such persons as, through sickness, or absence, may be unable to present themselves personally for registration shall be sojourning in cities of over 30,000 population, they shall apply to the city clerk of the city wherein they may be sojourning rather than to the clerk of the county. The clerks of counties and of cities of over 30,000 population, in which numerous applications from the sick and from nonresidents are expected, are authorized to establish such subagencies and to employ and deputize such clerical force as may be necessary to accommodate these applications.

The power against which we are arrayed has sought to impose its will upon the world by force. To this end it has increased armament until it has changed the face of war. In the sense in which we have been wont to think of armies there are no armies in this struggle. There are entire nations armed. Thus the men who remain to till the soil and man the factories are no less a part of the army that is in France than the men beneath the battle flags. It must be so with us. It is not an army that we must shape and train for war; it is a nation.

To this end our people must draw close in one compact front against a common foe. But this cannot be if each man pursues a private purpose. All must pursue one purpose. The nation needs all men, but it needs each man not in the field that will most please him, but in the endeavor that will best serve the common good. Thus, though a sharpshooter pleases to operate a trip hammer for the forging of great guns, and an expert machinist desires to march with the flag, the nation is being served only when the sharpshooter marches and the machinist remains at his levers. The whole nation must be a team in which each man shall play the part for which he is best fitted. To this end Congress has provided that the nation shall be organized for war by selection, and that each man shall be classified for service in the place to which it shall best serve the general good to call him.

The significance of this cannot be overstated. It is a new thing in our history, and a landmark in our progress. It is a new manner of accepting and vitalizing our duty to give ourselves with thoughtful devotion to the common purpose of us all. It is a new sense of conscription of the unwilling; it is rather, selection from a nation which has volunteered in mass it is no more a choosing of those who shall march with the colors than it is a selection of those who shall serve an equally necessary and devoted purpose in the industries that lie behind the battle line.

The day here named is the time upon which all shall present themselves for assignment to their tasks. It is for that reason, destined to be remembered as one of the most conspicuous moments in our history. It is nothing less than the day upon which the manhood of the country shall step forward in one solid rank in defense of the ideals to which this nation is consecrated. It is important to those ideals no less than to the pride of this generation in manifesting its devotion to them that there be no gaps in the ranks.

It is essential that the day be approached in thoughtful apprehension of its significance and that we accord to it the honor and the meaning that it deserves. Our industrial need prescribes that it be not made a technical holiday, but the stern sacrifice that is before us urges that it be carried in all our hearts as a great day of patriotic devotion and obligation, when the duty shall lie upon every man, whether he is himself to be registered or not to see to it that the name of every male person of the designated age is written on these lists of honor.

In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.
Done at the city of Washington, this 18th day of May, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and seventeen, and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty-first.

BY THE PRESIDENT.

ROBERT LANSING, Secretary of State.
